

1.10 | Rubric | Unit Final | Written Component

Criteria	1	2	3	4
Traits & Values Reflection	No meaningful reflection on personal values or traits; response missing or off-topic.	Basic mention of personal values or traits with little explanation or real-life connection.	Clear reflection on personal values/traits with some insight and at least one real-life example or strategy.	Thorough, honest reflection on the significance of personal values/traits, with clear real-life examples or plans.
Goals & Priorities	Does not identify any goals or priorities; no strategies presented.	States broad or unclear goals and priorities with little or no specific strategy.	Identifies clear and realistic goals and priorities; includes at least one concrete strategy or plan.	Clearly articulates specific and realistic goals and priorities, with detailed, pragmatic strategies for achieving them.
Reader/Writer Identity	No discussion of reader/writer identity or use of language.	Minimal or generic comments on reading, writing, or thinking; lacks personal insight.	Some self-awareness about language use and development as a reader/writer; provides at least one example.	Demonstrates thoughtful self-awareness about reader/writer identity; offers clear, specific examples of language use.
Written Quality	Writing lacks clear organization or coherence; ideas are hard to follow.	Basic organization; ideas somewhat understandable but lack expressiveness or flow.	Generally organized and mostly expressive; minor lapses in clarity or proofreading.	Well-organized, expressive writing with clear structure and flow; free of major errors due to thorough proofreading.
Grammar & Spelling	Frequent grammar and/or spelling errors that hinder understanding.	Some grammar or spelling errors but do not seriously distract from meaning.	Few, if any, grammar or spelling errors; writing is polished and easy to read.	(Use three levels here or merge with Written Quality if you prefer a 4-point scale throughout.)